SOUNDING BORED

by Catherine Ohl

The August trips were a repeat of July. The first one was very hot while the second was pretty cool. The skiing was fabulous for both. The photos are on the web site and you can read more about these trips on pages 4 & 5.

Only 4 trips remaining in 2003! Now is the time to mark those calendars and get your reservations in. At $89 a person for food, drink, water skiing and camping, our club trips are a bloody bargain. We have at least two boats available for the remainder of the trips and three boats for the Halloween trip. Which is a good thing since we've already filled two boats.

Snow Ski Trips

Your Rat's membership also gives you membership in LA Council and the Far West Ski Association (FWSA). Check out the ski trips planned for 2004 on page 8. ■

Trip Wrap — Aug 8-10, 2003

by Linda Newcomb-Mathis & Cathy Schulte

The August 9 & 10th trip was an incredibly hot weekend that didn't slow down the rats. Mark Mathis was the designated boat driver with Jim Hess helping out with the overflow.

Everyone was eager to ski due to the hot weekend except we didn't see Jan Hess or Stephanie Thompson till late Saturday since they choose to sleep in. We think they had one to many gin and tonics Friday night because it was a beautiful night for staying up late. Most everyone stayed in the water all day since it was so hot.

We had at least 2 water fights during the day with the kids joining in, especially Johnny Newcomb who was at the River for the first time. We think Tom and Bambie Newcomb will be coming back since Johnny had such a great time jumping off the swim step of Mark and Linda's boat.

We had a visitor for the weekend, Irv Aker, a former boat driver for the Rats, visited from Parker. Irv helped with getting ice, and then ran off to help a disabled boat driver before returning to join the Rats for dinner. Irv must really like kids because he let them play on his boat for hours as long as they kept sand out of his boat.

Happy hour was presented by Jim and Jan Hess. Jan prepared Sangria two days before the trip, which was fabulous. Great job J&J!! and Jim did a great job of cleaning up the trailer Saturday night.

In Gene's absence, Tom Newcomb was the master chef Saturday night, cooking the chicken just right even after sustaining an injury earlier in the day trying to get up on a wakeboard. Lisa Littrell did a superb job in helping out with Saturday's dinner by slaving over the hot stove in the heat fixing the mashed potatoes. Kudos also go to Annaliese Danner for helping with the dinner too.

Cathy Schulte was the trip leader and did a great job as usual, all in all everyone pitched in to make it another great weekend at the River. ■

Trip Wrap — Aug 22-24, 2003

by Gene Fulkerson

The weekend was unbelievably cool - mostly. We had a beautiful sunset on Saturday following some pretty strong winds (it knocked down the beach tarp), some great thunder storms and a complete rainbow. In fact, the rainbow was showing it's colors while it was still raining.

But the skys cleared up in time for dinner preparations since the rain extended the happy hour. A few of the folks where re-staking their tents on the point during the storm. It was awesome.

The Hess' where the first to arrive Friday on the point, quickly followed by Gene Fulkerson & Catherine Ohl. It was a pleasure to launch and anchor the boat while it was still light. Afterwards, Gene, Catherine & Brian Atkins took the boat up to Topac for dinner.

By the time they got back, enough folks had arrived so that Gene & Jim Hess could set up the kitchen. Then it was time for beer and cheap talk. (or is that cheap beer and talk?). Jan Hess and Stephanie Thompson once again stayed up with Peter Catalano until the wee hours. It amazes me that the two women live practically next to each other and yet they still have much to say.

The little girls, Danielle Hess, Kristine Aves and Courtney Thompson played well together. They dug a big whole in the sand and decorated it with rocks and twigs. As usual, the river reclaimed the sand during the night. The most fun for the girls was when Jim took them to the gorge to jump off the building into the river. Now, if only we can get them to water ski...

Agnes Johnson has been working on getting her weight more forward on her ski. As usual, she always has a smile on her face and ready to "hit it" at a moment's notice.

Brian Atkins was the new guy for the weekend. It turns out he just lives across the canyon from Catherine & Gene in San Diego. They can literally see each other backyards. Anyway, he is into wake boarding big time and takes lessons at San Diego University and is quite advanced in his skills (he was working on a flip all weekend).

Well, the short story is that Marco Marquina takes lessons at the same place as Brian and they sort of already knew each other. By the way, Marco's wake boarding skills has greatly progressed. And Brian gave him lots of help throughout the weekend.

Dennis McMullin and Christina Cardenas were back. They motel'd it in Laughlin on Friday and camped out Saturday. This gave them the opportunity to join Catherine, Gene and Ashley Thompson for some rare early morning glass. It's hard to believe that Ashley is just a freshman in high school. She has already started school and so spent a bit of time in the van doing homework.

Gene did his usual great job with dinner. Peter and Jim were a tremendous help. Jim volunteered to cook the potatoes, gravy and vegetables in his motor home when it was discovered that the propane tank was empty. Peter helped BBQ and made everyone breakfast. Again thanks again for all your hard work. ■

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

by Catherine Ohl

Record Sentence for Colorado Slope Collision—

Michael Wolff received the longest sentence in Colorado history for a ski resort accident. After plowing through a class of children (5-6 yrs. old) at Sunlight in March, sobriety tests were performed on the 20-year-old snowboarder and he was found to be seriously inebriated.

Two of the children were injured. The court handed down an 8 month jail term for child abuse. As part of the sentence, Wolff must write letters of apology, serve three years probation on release and pay $9,300 in restitution.

Durango Swings for Park Fence—

Durango Mountain Resort will create the Paradise Terrain Park for Winter 2003-04.

Running more than half a mile and 600 vertical feet down riders' right of Paradise on front side, the park will feature a 450-foot halfpipe with 15 foot walls and an exit transition, boxes, "more rail than the Durango & Silverton Historic Railroad," hits, spines, and tabletops of all sizes and shapes.

Sunshine Celebrates Its 75th—

For 2003-04, Sunshine Village is replacing the old Standish double chair with a high-speed quad chairlift. With the addition of the new lift, Sunshine will feature seven quad chairs — the most in the Canadian Rockies. Sunshine will also be opening 190 acres of new expert terrain on Goat's Eye Mountain, increasing the total skiable area to 3358 acres and number of runs to 108.

The new "Wild West", 7 double black runs, and the "Eagle Saddle" area on Goat's Eye (new steep fall-line chutes) reinforces Sunshine's commitment to creating the best and safest mountain experience possible for its guests.

Sunshine's 75th Anniversary season opening date is planned for November 7, 2003. Come and visit and discover for yourself why Sunshine is now the most-visited resort in the Canadian Rockies.

For more information visit skibanff.com.

Vail Resorts Launches Perfect 10-Pack Ticket—

For the third winter season, Vail Resorts is passing along savings to skiers and snowboarders with the Perfect 10 Ticket at $349 for adults and $199 for children. The Perfect 10 is designed for those who like to take more than one ski or snowboard vacation a season. The Perfect 10 Ticket features 10 days of skiing and riding at six world-class resorts—Vail, Beaver Creek, Breckenridge, Keystone and Arapahoe Basin in Colorado and Heavenly in California and Nevada. ■

THE ENVIRONMENT

Ski Resorts Show Progress on Environmental Issues—

The third annual Sustainable Slopes Annual Report released by the National Ski Areas Association (NSAA) details the ski industry's progress in implementing its Environmental Charter for Ski Areas over the past season.

Seventy-nine resorts from 25 states measured their progress in implementing environmental best practices this past spring in 21 areas of environmental stewardship.

The four areas in which resorts scored the highest include: protecting wetlands and riparian areas; protecting scenic values or "visual quality"; planning, designing and constructing facilities in an environmentally sensitive manner; and properly handling potentially hazardous waste.

The four areas that resorts need to improve on in the future include: energy use for lifts; reusing products to reduce waste; energy use for vehicle fleets; and energy use for snowmaking.

The assessment helped resorts quantify reductions in CO<sub>2</sub>, a principal greenhouse gas associated with global warming. Collectively, resorts helped eliminate the emission of 222,608,369 pounds of CO<sub>2</sub> through energy conservation, waste reduction/recycling and transportation-related projects

Ski Fitness

Skiing is a demanding sport. It subjects your body to repeated stresses and involves strenuous exertion at high altitude.

The fitter you are, the better and longer you will be able to ski each day, and the lower your risk of injury will be. Any fitness program should include the following.

Anaerobic Fitness—

Skiing calls for anaerobic fitness, the strength and ability to sustain short bursts of exertion. Skiing bumps, short radius turns and schussing all require power, as well as stamina.

Aerobic Fitness—

Perhaps most importantly, you need to be aerobically fit in order to exercise in the thin mountain air. There's only one way to achieve this, and that's through some sort of program of exercise which raises your heart rate and keeps it there over a period of at least 15 minutes.

Coordination, Balance and Flexibility—

Finally, your ski fitness program should improve your co-ordination, balance and flexibility, allowing you a more dynamic range of movement. ■

Park Moabi Parking

This is a sample parking plan, since we are no longer at the same point each weekend.

Note: there are only three hook-ups available.
